Forecast For London & Southeast England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Thursday 18 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Increasingly damp, cloudy and windy Friday. Brightest in the east.

This Evening and Tonight:
Isolated showers soon dying away, leaving a dry and locally chilly remainder of the night, with a touch of frost possible briefly in the most prone rural spots. Becoming cloudier and windier in western areas towards dawn. Minimum temperature 2 deg C (36 deg F).

Friday:
Driest and brightest in eastern parts, as outbreaks of rain in the west make erratic inroads eastwards, perhaps not reaching the far east until late. Windy, with coastal gales. Mild. Maximum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Mostly fine but breezy Saturday, with rain retreating westwards. Rain perhaps returning eastwards Sunday, but easing along with the wind. Monday initially murky with some fog, but brighter later. Mild.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.